Past Vet Society Exec. Issues Statement, Rebuttal

(Ed. Note:—The following is a reply to the report issued by the present executive of the McGill Veterans' Society as it appeared in Friday's Daily by members of the past executive).
In spite of the fact that the present executive of the McGill Student Veterans' Society "does not intend to enter into any controversy", their statement as printed in Friday's Daily must be dealt with very sharply. Under the guise of being a report on the "state of the society" for the information of all students, the new executive has used a number of half-truths, insinuations and accusations to launch an attack on the integrity and work of last year's executive. This deliberate dishonesty on the part of the new executive is well illustrated by a complete presentation of the facts that were at their command.

What does their statement attempt to prove?

1. That the past executive continuously acted in an unauthorized manner while keeping the Society in the dark as to its activities.

2. That the handling of the finances indicated dishonesty on the part of the treasurer, and therefore, by inference, on the part of the whole executive.

3. That the past executive was not concerned with the employment problems which face student veterans.

4. That there was a conspiracy on the part of the executive to disseminate Labor Progressive Party propaganda among student veterans.

Presumably having "established" the above, what do they hope to accomplish thereby?

By printing the "Turnover Statement" they hope to divert attention from their statement of policy, which waters down the policies this executive was elected to carry out.

What is the meaning of the following statement? "In view of the conditions reported, we the members of the present executive wish to advise the veterans of McGill that the following represents our opinion as to the future of the Student Veterans' Society, and the functions which it should perform." What have the so-called "conditions" reported got to do with a statement of policy? This can only lead one to assume that:

1. The turnover statement was meant to paint the last year's executive as dishonest, underhand and unrepresentative.

2. From this point they go on to insinuate that last year's policies were therefore incorrect.

3. Since the new executive was given a clear mandate to carry out similar policies, i.e., a definite fight for increased grants, a definite housing program, etc., they assume that these policies can now also be considered incorrect, leaving the way open for them to gradually liquidate the Student Veterans' Society.

UNAUTHORIZED ACTIONS

It was pointed out that on March 4th three recommendations were sent to the Minister of Veterans' Affairs which were not approved by the society. The three recommendations were as follows:

"... (1) Medical Students: Whereas, the summer employment period of medical students is only 2½ months... and available jobs connected with medicine are either non-paying or the remuneration is only 'pin money'... recommend: ... (a) Medical Students be ruled eligible to draw out-of-work benefits for a maximum of 2½ months while they are employed in hospitals, labs, etc.

"... (b) They be allowed to earn a total of (say) $120 per month including out-of-work benefits.

"... (c) The above should not affect the Student's credit, as the medical course is very long and most Medical Students need all of their credit.

"... (2) War Widows Desirous of Training: ... recommend that the re-establishment credit be made available to widows, for University and Vocational training. No cash outlays would be involved, as her pension would cover the living allowance, the only cost being that of her fees.

"... (3) Payment of Fees of Students Registered Before Discharge: ... We recommend that D.V.A. pay the Student Veteran's fees for the whole course from the date of registration, regardless of date of discharge."

These recommendations were forwarded at the request of representative students on behalf of those who were faced with these problems. Why has this matter been mentioned in the Turnover without presenting the above facts? Obviously, in order to create a feeling of general suspicion towards last year's executive.

KEEPING THE SOCIETY UNINFORMED.

This example is used to give the impression that last year's executive kept the Society in the dark as to its actions. The contrary is a well-known fact. A mere glance through last year's Daily files reveals that there were forty major reports, on policy and action throughout the year. Amongst these reports is one of Feb. 18, 1946 giving a full report of the contents of the above letter and that it was being forwarded to the Department of Veterans Affairs at Ottawa.

FINANCIAL

What was the purpose of the new executive in dealing with this matter? Despite the fact that the new executive dared not directly accuse the past treasurer of embezzlement (for fear of a libel suit), their sly insinuations served to raise doubts in the minds of the members of the Society as to the honesty of the treasurer and the past executive as a whole. These are the facts of the "financial" matter: the books have not yet been audited and handed over officially to the new executive, certain incomplete facts concerning the summer's activities having delayed the process. As is normal, the books will be completed, at which time they can make any comments they feel necessary about the integrity of the past executive.

UNIVET ENTERPRISES LTD.

The charge that the past executive neglected the employment problems of the veterans is the most serious one that has been raised. Here again the new executive is playing on the ignorance of student veterans concerning the whole facts of the case.

Univet Enterprises Ltd. was set up last year as a private company. This organization operated entirely independently of the Veterans' Society from its inception. It was not until the end of last term when the company was not making any money and was experiencing personal difficulties that Paul LeBrooy approached the executive of the Veterans' Society for help. His proposal was that the Veterans' Society assume full responsibility for the administration of his organization.

The past executive could not add the work of running Univet to their duties, since it was mainly a problem of full-time employees to carry on the day-to-day work. We therefore suggested that the matter be taken to the University with the proposal that the authorities set up an employment service which could adequately handle the employment problems of all students. The executive then approached the Veterans' Counsellor Mr. Colin MacDougal with their proposal and were informed that the university already had under advisement a plan to set up such an employment service this fall. This proposal was again put forward this fall and we are pleased that the University has announced its intention to set up the employment service within the next few weeks. It should be noted, however, that as yet no provision has been made for student representation, as was proposed in the Veterans' Society resolution dealing with this matter.

THE RED SCARE

Here again the new executive tells half a story to make a point. The impression is given that last year's executive, for some strange and sinister reason, volunteered to give a list of the Society's membership to the Montreal Committee of the Canadian Tribune. They conveniently forgot to mention that this Committee had written a letter (which is in the files) to the Veterans' Society pointing out that their next issue featured articles on Veterans' problems, which they felt would be of interest to the members of the society. As with all similar communications which were received by the past executive, they were replied to courteously, and in this case, no answer to the executive's reply was received. If this exchange of correspondence was so "sinister", why should the letters have been put into the files? Any well-trained conspirator would know that such a job should be done on the QT—leaving no trace—otherwise he deserves to be shot. The new executive REALLY discovered something!!!!

A detailed examination of the new executive's Statement of Policy reveals that on every major point they have moved away from the policy clearly laid down at the election meeting.

POLICY

In spite of the fact that increasing evidence shows that inadequate finances is the major problem of more and more veterans, the incoming executive has seen fit to relegate the question of increased finances to a minor place in their Statement. Furthermore, they entirely ignore the Veterans' Society's resolution "that the incoming executive carry on a campaign in line with the previous policy of the Veterans' Society to have the maintenance grants increased" and that they seek the support "of all people and organizations... who are concerned with this problem." Further proof of their attitude to this matter is that, at the interview with Mr. MacKenzie, when the new executive had an excellent opportunity to raise the question of increasing maintenance grants, they did not even see fit to mention the subject.

GRANTS

The new executive's Statement of Policy points out that "the executive will give general assistance to the veterans in their presentation of their applications to the Student-Veteran Loan Board". This completely ignores the ability of most veterans to write, as well as the fact that the Veterans' Society's resolution, clearly stated: "that the incoming executive... do all possible to see that some form of loan scheme is set up which will allow single and married veterans to borrow money without having to prove absolute inability to carry on before being considered eligible for a loan."

HOUSING

Here again the new executive is trying to minimize the scope of the problem and this time with the aid of "statistics". Of 700 veterans who answered the questionnaire some 140 indicated that they had a definite housing problem. The new executive, therefore, chooses to state that only 4 per cent. of the veterans at McGill have a housing problem. How do they arrive at this figure? By the very simple expedient of taking 140 as a percentage of 3,500—the total enrollment at McGill. Their statement also ignores the resolution passed at the election meeting which calls for action on co-operative residences and support for "the building of low-rental permanent homes under a national housing program initiated by the federal government."

QUESTIONNAIRE

As far as can be ascertained from the Statement of Policy no effort will be made to compile the results of this questionnaire or to make them known to the public at large as called for at the election meeting. Further, it seems that no steps will be taken to have a questionnaire circulated at Dawson College.

PROGRESS REPORT

It is significant that the treatment given to the new executive's statement by the Daily was entirely different to that given by the Star and the Gazette.

The public press was in a position to go straight to the job of rebalancing their headlines obviously indicated. Because the public at large is not well acquainted with the work of the past executive it was necessary for them to play around with "charges" of inefficiency in order to discredit them.

On the other hand, to do the same job on the campus, that is, to undermine any influence the

Sam Watson To Speak On Labour's Plan

Sam Watson, British Labour M.P. and prominent member of the executive of the British Labour Party will speak at an open meeting of the McGill C.C.F. Club to be held at 5 p.m. Tuesday, November 19th.

Mr. Watson has for some years past been secretary of the Durham Miners Federation, the largest section of the National Union of Miners which is the largest union affiliated to the British Labour Party and has a membership of some 600,000. As a delegate of the Trades Union Congress and the British Labour Party he recently attended and spoke at the Convention of the American Federation of Labor held in Chicago. As a delegate of the T.U.C. he has visited most of the countries of Europe since their liberation and is well acquainted with their problems. Starting work as a miner at the age of twelve he was able to work his way up through labour circles to membership in the National Council of Labour, a coordinating body which represents the Trade Unions, Cooperatives and the Labour Party at their highest levels.

The topic of Mr. Watson's talk "Britain in Transition" will consist of a full and accurate account of Social Developments, and the plans and program of the Labour Administration.

Members of the past executive might have on veterans' affairs, the attempt was made to "prove" that this executive was inefficient and dishonest, with a dash of red-baiting thrown in for good measure. This elaborate story was all the more necessary for campus consumption since it was already well known that there were members of the LPP on the Veterans' Society Executive.

The only conclusion one can come to as to the progress made by the new executive is that they have done a fine job of red-baiting and given a good demonstration of the use of diversionary tactics in their efforts to take the steam out of the veterans society and their attempt to lay the basis for its final dissolution.

Campbell of ISS Sets Forth Aims, History, Needs of Body

In an informal speech in the Union Ballroom, on Friday at 5 o'clock, George Campbell, Canadian Executive Secretary of the International Student Service, spoke on the structure, the history, the activities and the aims of I.S.S.; his impressive exposition of the case for ISS was seriously appreciated and soundly applauded by those in attendance. Mr. Campbell declared that the ISS is an organization one of whose functions is to raise money to provide aid for the students of ravaged countries which aid so far has assumed only token form. A spontaneous movement in Canada, it is an expression of sympathy on the part of Canadian students blessed with plenty of European students who are less fortunate.

COMMUNITY OF INTERESTS

He pointed out that the aim of the organization is "to promote an awareness on the part of students everywhere of a community of interests and of ideals that transcend the political conflicts dominant in the international sphere today". This is accomplished by the exchange of students internationally. Conditions during the war and today emphasize the need for ISS aid and the plan for student exchange has been shelved to date. George Campbell explained the structure of ISS and emphasized the fact that the organization was politically neutral and religiously impartial.

During the war, ISS was affiliated with UNRRA, helping students of devastated countries by means of shelter, food, supplies and tuition fees. In southern France, the ISS has established a hostel for students where they may recover from physical and mental strains suffered during the war. According to Mr. Campbell, ISS aims to "discover the need and to meet that need quickly and efficiently."

As for the immediate objectives of ISS, Mr. Campbell stated that the desire of the organization was to associate itself with the local McGill students.

Forge Issues Call for Literary Contributions

Material is urgently needed for McGill's only literary magazine—"The Forge". Short stories, plays, poems, and articles are acceptable and will be judged for publication on their literary merit. The deadline for the winter edition is December 15, 1946.

The Forge provides a medium of publication for younger writers within McGill University and should reflect the literary standard of the University as a whole. The maturity of the present student body is shown in the contributions received, but now material is urgently needed. Since the deadline is less than a month away, students of all faculties are urged not to delay in submitting their contributions which can be handed into The Union Tuck Shop or left with Walter in the Arts Building.

Grad Society Sponsors New Employ Office

Over the weekend McGill announced the formation of a permanent employment office which is to be called the McGill Placement Bureau. It is to assume responsibility for helping both graduates and undergraduates to find full and part-time employment. Originally proposed by the Graduates Society, the bureau will provide branch placement committees in all parts of Canada, and will also find an appropriate individual to serve as director. Members of the faculty will serve as a committee for student vocational guidance and selection.

Principal James in his announcement paid tribute to the splendid work done by the McGill graduates society in exploring the possibility of creating such an organization and pointed out that the work of the Graduates Society Placement Committee will constitute a tremendous contribution to the general work of the University while at the same time offering to undergraduates and those who will receive their degrees in the near future a valuable service.

PLACEMENT BUREAU

This board will be composed of the member of the University Placement Committee, the Graduate Placement Committee and ex-officio members for liaison purposes. It will meet to determine the policy of the Placement Service and will delegate its powers to two committees, an executive committee, which will be the active operational authority and a finance committee which will prepare the budget and recommend all appointments to the executive staff of the Service.

GRADUATE COMMITTEE

This committee, appointed by the Board of Directors of the Graduate Society, will be held responsible for finding opportunities and directing suitable candidates to them. There will be members of this committee in key centres both in the United States and in Canada. Members will be chosen on the basis of their business contacts.

UNIVERSITY COMMITTEE

This will be comprised of the University section of the Board and will be responsible for student vocational guidance and the selection of the student candidates to be recommended by the Placement Service. The committee will be comprised of six members of the Red & White Revue Needs Music, Songs

The producers of the Red and White Revue have announced that on Wednesday, Nov. 20, they will be in the Union Ballroom from 2.00 to 4.30 for the purpose of receiving musical contributions for this year's show.

At this date only music will be auditioned, and contributors can play their compositions on the piano provided there. It is emphasized that all contributions should be written so that, if acceptable, D'Arcy Shea, who is in charge of music, can start to work on the pieces immediately.

Since the show is to be predominantly musical, the producers emphasized that a large number of songs will be required, and urged that a good representation turn out.

Additioning for the chorus will also take place in the near future under the supervision of Dick Hunter—choreographer. As this will be announced in The Daily in the near future, all those interested are requested to watch for announcements.

Get the Perspective

The manner in which the present executive of the McGill Veterans' Society handled one of its first official acts has caused more than a little disturbance in the ranks of liberal thinking students on the campus. The reference, of course, is to the report which appeared in the columns of The Daily Friday morning, and which appeared to be more destructive in design than was necessary.

While for the most part the report was an intelligent, well-planned statement of progress and of policy, the section specified as turnover seemed more suited to the views of an irresponsible group. This is neither a defence of the old executive nor a damnation of the new, but an indication of disappointment in both. That the offices of the Veterans' Society were used in any way for a particular political view is subject to censure—the executive is elected by popular vote and expected to handle affairs only as indicated in their mandate. There was no plank in the platform of the past executive to indicate that they were to associate their activities with the L.P.P. For that reason alone, there should have been every effort made to avoid contact with an organ of the repute which is borne by the Canadian Tribune. If any activity was to be handled in such a manner as to identify the McGill Veterans' Society with any Communist activity the main body of the Society's membership should have first been consulted. That they were not in the case of the distribution of the newspaper indicates that the past executive was prepared to ignore the opinion of their electors, a matter which will not enhance their esteem on the campus.

However, on the other hand, the present executive has gone out of its way to overlook the good works of their predecessors and to join in with the popular but highly-undesirable pastime of red-baiting. Such a pastime has no place on the campus of a liberal university unless we are to allow reason and restraint to be overcome by emotions and hatreds, and so give up any idea of continuing the freedom of speech and thought of which we have been so proud. That we harbor no such intentions goes without saying, and for that reason alone the present executive would have gained in prestige by avoiding the destructiveness apparent in their recent report. Their references to the less pressing matters of keeping of files and minutes and their obvious ignoring of such constructive activities carried on by the past executive as questionnaires on housing, allowances, etcetera, and the organization of a national executive at the last national conference showed an intent of running down the estimation of the past incumbents—totally needless after the repudiation given them at the recent elections.

We hope that from now on the energies of the executive will be turned toward those channels which will do the most good in a constructive manner for the veterans on the campus. We hope that issues will no longer be clouded with allegations and accusations of an unnecessary nature, but that they will be worked out in a direct fashion for the betterment of the average returned man. The best road which they can follow is one which they themselves set in the report—"This executive does not intend to enter into useless controversy, it intends rather, to devote its time and energy to improving conditions for veteran students in their efforts for further education and rehabilitation into civilian life. That is, and will be, our sole purpose."—A.K.

The Story of the McGill War Memorial

The story of the McGill War Memorial is essentially one of a man with an idea plus the determination and ability to put that idea into effect. Elected President of the McGill Graduates' Society in 1944, Eric A. Leslie, Vice-President and Comptroller of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, considered first of all how he might make his term of office most useful to the University, the undergraduates, and the Society.

The European War was drawing to a close and Eric Leslie realized that McGill's high ranking war effort would naturally call for a fitting War Memorial of enduring utility, suited to the spirited temperament and manly vigour of those McGill men whose sacrifices had made victory possible. He examined the needs of the University, and the long term programme of the Graduates' Society.

In 1933 the Society had conducted an architectural competition for an integrated athletic centre consisting of gymnasium, swimming pool, and rink-auditorium. The newly elected president and his close confederates decided to test graduate opinion on the matter of combining the War Memorial objective with the 1933 undertaking of the Society to provide McGill with its long-awaited athletic centre.

Eric Leslie consulted leading graduates in Montreal, took a quick trip round the far-flung branches of the Society. Everywhere, he found reawakening interest in the University, following the worst of the war years.

Committees sprang up in the branches as well as in many areas previously unorganized by the Society. One of the first to offer support, Air Vice-Marshal Frank S. McGill, accepted the responsibility of campaign chairman. Eric Leslie became chairman of the Executive Committee.

Objective was originally set at $300,000, believed at first to be enough to provide the second Athletic Centre unit, consisting of Memorial Entrance Hall, Swimming Pool, and gymnasium extension. Rising building costs prompted raising of the objective to $400,000. Then a governor of the University, reminding the Committee that the final Rink-Auditorium unit might well prove to be within reach, offered an additional gift of $10,000 if the Campaign reached $500,000 by the end of 1945.

Eric Leslie and his associates on the Executive Committee went over the top on that interim objective of $500,000. In reaching this total, the support of the students at McGill had been of vital importance.

In September, 1946 the overall total was $555,000, but the number of graduates supporting the Fund had almost doubled.

Plans were laid for pushing on beyond the $600,000 by the end of the year. It was recognized that once this mark is passed, raising of the final $150,000 to $200,000 could be confidently hoped for in 1947. The current total is already nearly $570,000.

It is at this critical point that the support of the McGill students can now again be thrown behind the graduates. On December 2, 3, and 4, Bud Trivett, Ted Taylor, and the Red and White Society, headed by President, John Dohan, will set out to achieve 100 per cent student participation at McGill and Dawson, with every student contributing at least one dollar for the McGill Rink-Auditorium.

The objective of $10,000 is a big one and will loom large in these critical last two months of the 1946 campaign.

Success on the Campus will tell the Graduates "We want our link. Here's the proof! Now go out and pick up the rest—BUT QUICK!"

AT THE MOVIES

MEET THE NAVY

Somewhere in the process of being transformed from a top-notch stage production into a movie, "Meet the Navy," currently appearing at the Palace Theatre, lost a good deal of the zest and youthful zinginess that had characterized the show from Vancouver to the Continent. It still ranks as a pretty fair entertainment in certain spots but the draggy interludes between these highlights snafued the whole movie.

As usual, the magnates of the silver screen seemed to think that a plot should be introduced and in the general opinion of the audience the plot would have looked much better in a cemetery. Had they been content to let the revue remain a revue, the results would have been much pleasanter for all concerned.

However, don't get scared off by the above. John Pratt and his "You'll Get Used To It" is still worth the price of admission while the other songs are on the bright and breezy side. The dancing is as good as any Hollywood professional chorus line and the technicolor finale is tops. For anyone who hasn't seen the original Navy show, you might take in this celluloid adaptation while if you have seen it previously the memories are still worth reviving.

H.S.

SO DARK THE NIGHT

A moderately good "Whodunnit" is currently playing at the Imperial. The name of the film is "So Dark the Night" and the European cast lends to the atmosphere of the story, which is built up to a surprising climax in an extremely enticing and competent manner.

What appealed to this reviewer particularly was the clever use of stage and camera technique. For those who relish in the European type of cinema productions, this mystery thriller will be right up their alley. The principals Micheline Cheiral as the attractive heroine and Steve Geray as the sinister and ruthless villain turn in convincing portrayals and the action moves quickly and smoothly enough to keep the audience in continued suspense. Neither is the love motive overplayed, a rarity in Hollywood productions nowadays.

The added feature is another mystery Unknown, but it does not reach the standards of the main feature.

MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE

They really had to dig this story up for Mr. Hope, for Monsieur Beaucaire is not up to his standard. However, the way people are flocking in to see the popular comic goes to prove that a star can cover up a multitude of cinematic sins quite adequately.

The story is reshaped from a

Book Tarkington novel and any similarity between this and the original version is a mistake. The jokes are fair when Hope delivers them, especially the crack about Bing. Joan Caulfield is quite adequately luscious although her part calls for no great histrionic talent. We could have seen more of Marjorie Reynolds as the Spanish princess, while Joseph Schildkraut is his old suave self as the Spanish villain.

Frankly, the latest Hope vehicle was a disappointment but the luscious personalities of Marjorie Reynolds and Joan Caulfield are enough to make the film pleasing. You'll probably see this film anyway, so you might as well get in line now.

YOUNG WIDOW

The comments coming out of Hollywood called Jane Russell, the All-American bust. After seeing the picture "Young Widow" one can't help agreeing but in a totally different sense.

Despite Miss Russell's physical attractions which were muffled very effectively in the picture, the young lady cannot act or photograph well. This coupled with a very weak plot makes the main attraction at the Princess not exciting. It deals largely with a young war widow who struggle between present love, namely Louis Hayward and past love, which is played by some individual who for the sake of his film career wisely did not appear on the screen. As is expected, Miss Russell succumbs to Mr. Hayward's charms and rushes to the air port in the last scene to wave him off to Japan. The film closes with Jane Russell breasting the wind and standing in the cold. That is just the way the picture left us—standing cold.

The second feature "Deadline for Crime" is a semi-plausible but nonetheless enjoyable whodunnit featuring Paul Kelly and Kent Taylor. — C. S.

CANYON PASSAGE

Held over for a second week at the Capitol, Canyon Passage presents us with the wild and woolly West with Dana Andrews, Susan Hayward, Brian Donlevy, and the lovely English star of "Madonna of the Seven Moons," Patricia Roc. The best thing about the movie is the technicolor; the scenery and its presentation are a pleasure to lovers of nature.

The plot is fairly involved, and quite exciting. Boy chases girl and everyone else. There are also Indians and plenty of suspense. Hoaxy Carmichael is good as ever but out of place.

Four very good subjects round out the program. The show is recommended for all who like to escape for a while into the romantic days of the horse-operas, of houses that spring up like magic, of singing and happy endings.

Pierre Dagenais To Direct Asmodee

Mr. Pierre Dagenais has been chosen to direct M.R.T.'s production of Mauriac's play Asmodee. His particular talent as a director is ideally suited to the play "Asmodee", for the action gains rhythmic movement under his guiding hand, adding intensity to the dramatic moments and gaiety to the humorous situations.

He will be remembered for his work in the Shakespeare Society's production of "King Lear" which was performed at Moyse Hall last year.

In addition to his directional qualities, Mr. Dagenais made a name for himself as an actor in the French film "Le Pere Chopin" as well as in the role of the poet in Brac Manor Summer Theatre's production of "Candida". M.R.T. look to him for a very faithful representation of Mauriac's drama when it opens at the Guy Street Playhouse on November 28th.

LETTER FORUM

EDITOR,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:

There seems to be an interpretation that the person who wrote the letter under the pseudonym of "Redigusted" was afraid of certain types who would wish to see him. This is not so, since having written it, I happen to know. The only reason why I signed "Redigusted" was in emulation of "Disgusted", and I thought "re-disgusted" suited the situation pally. I also happened to write my own name underneath this pen-name. I did not understand that I was supposed to be afraid of anyone.

For the purpose of anyone finding me, if they so desire, I can be found in the Union Cafeteria any night from 6 to 7 p.m. I should particularly like to see Mr. Patton.

Signed: DUNCAN W. McLEOD.

Editor the McGill Daily,

Dear Sir:

In the Daily of November 14, the following statement appeared in the article entitled "The Daily meets the Jet": "The Nene... delivers a thrust of five thousand pounds at 600 miles per hour, this is equivalent to twelve thousand horse-power."

Any one who can wiggle a slide rule can plainly see that the above thrust at the above speed is equivalent to only 8,000 horsepower. Hoping that the author will not make any more errors in his calculations, we remain,

Yours truly

Toronto Captures Harrier Race at Kingston

Doull, Preston Star As Varsity Defeats Redmen and Queens

Last Saturday Kingston saw Toronto Varsity win the first Intercollegiate Harrier race since prewar days with a total of fourteen points, to McGill's and Queen's 31 and 38 respectively. The winning Varsity aggregate came through by a strong margin copping both 1st and second place in the race while Queen's and McGill took third and fourth spots respectively. The race opened briskly despite the inclement weather, and slippery cross-country grounds proved a great disadvantage to the Redmen who took to the race without spiked shoes. Fenton and Ballon led for McGill at the start but sank to fourth and fifth places respectively by the finish. The high powered Varsity squad earned a well deserved victory and were favored from the start. Preston and Doull carried the flying blues to the colorful number one and two spots, while Watts of Queen's nabbed third place.

KEEN COMPETITION

The competition was very keen; David Preston had won this year's Intercollegiate three mile run at Toronto; while Fenton and Ballon had come through with wins in provincial and collegiate meets. Toronto were up in front early and held the lead to the finish with the best Harrier squad in at least ten years. The air was clear and cold with the runners falling continually on the slippery terrain. Preston and Doull provided most of the excitement, racing for first place, although they are both Varsity men. As the thermometer quivered around the freezing point Preston came through, barely squeezing out Doull and finishing the lengthy 5.51 mile track, in a brisk 29 minutes and 15 seconds. Preston showed well and is a high calibre man who would figure well in American competition.

FIRST FOUR COUNT

With five men on each of the three squads only the first four of each team counts and the lowest total wins. The winning Varsity Blues also copped 5th and 6th places by Greene and Taylor to total 14 points; while Graham and Lore took 9th and 11th spots for the Redmen, bringing their total up to 31. The tricolor squad from Queens trailed with 38 points.

NOTES TO YOU

Unanimously chosen as the hickiest hayseeds at the hop, Ralph (the beard), Pronger and Margaret (Lollypop) Pratt were the proud winners of a free weekend at the M.O.C. house at Shawbridge. Music for the Hayseed Hop was provided by Farmer Don, C.J.A.D., Cameron and his boys, whose makeshift bandstand in the Hayloft was most uncomfortable due to the Union's (anyone you can think of) shortage of hay. Those two onions left over from the "orange or lemon" dance will be presented with due ceremony to Ron (rabbit) Smith and P. (city-slicker) J. It is rumored that George of Tuck Shop fame is trying to dispose of same.

Although the turnout of good-looking girls was exceptional, does anyone want to know the names and addresses of those three chickens who were left standing in the corner of the "big barn" all night? To the top-hat and escort who got the nice mice twice, if you are in any doubt as to what to feed them try feeding them to the local mauler. The barn-dancing exhibition was lots of fun and Dot is as it should be. The floor almost fell through when the whole gang started dancing the "real" thing.

To all you folk who are interested in barn-dancing, keep your eyes on the M.O.C. Club News for information as to date and time for the next practice.

BIG SPLASH

First Swimming Practice Today; Coach Curran Calls for Talent

In keeping with the policy of providing the maximum amount of competition for the McGill swimming team, the swimming executive, composed of Coach Curran and Managers Cooper and Quillies, have lined up an impressive training and competitive program. Practices will start tonight at 5.30 p.m. at Schubert Bath; and in an effort to mould the team into a championship squad in Intercollegiate activity, all prospective swim enthusiasts are expected to show up today.

Due to the fact that a number of the swimming team graduated last year, the team is in need of some new talent, especially those that are proficient in the back and breast strokes. Coach Vic Curran, third year Medical student and popular coach of the Red and White squad for the past two years will once more be around to give the swimmers the finer points of the game.

TEN MEETS

It has been announced that this year's swimming schedule will consist of at least ten meets. Besides the annual intercollegiate meet with Toronto and Queens, meets have been arranged with three American Universities. Local meets are to be held with the C.A.S.A. all stars and Malcolm Ross's Y.M.C.A. team, which meets are made possible through the courtesy of the C.A.S.A., in supplying the pool and referees. Also lined up for a local meet will be the stars of the city high schools against the Red and White squad, with the intention of developing younger talent for future collegiate competition.

Reds Continue Puck Practices This Afternoon

Hockey practices continue this week in preparation for another big and victorious season. Coach Dave Campbell who is again leading the senior squad, has announced that there will be a practice today from 12:30 to 1:30. Porteous and piersen will be conspicuous by their absence but Teron, Broderick, Gelineau, Gosselin, O'Connor and the Hale Brothers will make a firm foundation for another winning team. There is plenty of room for new blood and all hockey enthusiasts should come down and try for a berth on this year's squad.

INTER PRACTICE

There is also an intermediate hockey practice today at the Verdun Auditorium from 3 to 4. This meeting, said Ross Hutchings will serve to arrange for future hockey practices. An exhibition game has been arranged with an American squad in an effort to put this class of hockey on a larger scale. Because of this new attraction, greater interest and a larger turnout is expected for the Intermediate Pucksters.

Krol Stars as Argos Thrash Allouettes 12-6

It was a Kroll fate, that the game Saturday dealt out to the Alouettes as the Argos subdued Lou Heyman's bouncing boys 12-6. It was a field day for Joe Kroll the mighty Toronto half who put a quietus to his critics.

In the first half the Scullers were all over Montreal's pride and joy. A blocked kick put Toronto in position for a Kroll to Copeland pass which put the Double Blue in a 6-0 lead which they never relinquished. In the second quarter the boys from Toronto kept up the steady driving and King Kroll took it over himself to put Toronto up 12-0.

ALS. TAKE OVER Just as the boys from Hogtown dominated the play in the first half, so the Alouettes were in control in the later stages. Starting a prolonged offensive from the start. The red and white, paced by the plunging of John Moody moved the ball to the Sculler five yard line, then Wagner carried it over. However on hurdling over, Wagner was hit hard and fumbled; Toronto recovering for a single point.

Set back but undaunted, Heyman's hirelings picked up a Kroll fumble on the Toronto ten. Wagner then made no mistake about it, and carried the pigskin over to make it, 12-6. The Alouettes swarmed all over the double Blue but to no avail, and despite the stirring play of the Montreal backfield, there will be an all Toronto semifinals next week.

Squash Enthusiasts Display Fine Form; Pearson Wins Meet

A repeat performance of last year's upset took place when the second seeded Stan Pearson of Philadelphia outscored the American champ Charlie Brinton yesterday in the last session of the M.A.A.A.'s International Invitation Squash Tournament by a score of 3-2.

Dave Culver, Pete Landry, Andy LeMesurier, Guy MacFarlane and Colin Stairs, flying the Red and White colours of McGill showed terrific form considering that this was the first tournament of the season.

From the McGill angle, even though the Redmen were unable to hit the finals the squash fans certainly have someone to rely on. These boys can certainly bring ye Old Alma Mater into the closing strains of the intercollegiate tournament, scheduled to be held in early March.

MC GILL PROMINENT

Both Dave Culver and Pete Landry able to keep in the running until yesterday by virtue of trimming among others, the top rated local men. Doug Sinclair (M.A.A.A.) and Clary Booth (M.A.A.A.) respectively. LeMesurier, MacFarlane and Stairs, all displaying promising style were edged out in earlier hard fought games.

In yesterday's games, McGill's Dave Culver was unfortunately defeated by the Ontario champ Bill Noyes. Noyes' hopes were dented a little later on when he was shutout by the U.S.A. National Champion, Charlie Brinton.

Pete Landry, one of the other representatives that McGill is placing a lot of hope on to show well in the intercollegiate meet, gave the Canadian champion Jack Liebel much cause for worry before he bowed down to him in a closely contested game. The score was 3-1.

However Liebel's hopes were also dented when he was defeated nicely by the pride of Philadelphia—Stan Pearson.

BEST MATCH

The most heated match of the entire session was played between Brinton and Pearson. The latter beat the American champ in a last all out effort by a very slim margin; 3-2.

All in all it was a swell session, and the forthcoming game in which Harvard, M.I.T. and McGill will participate should merit much interest from the student body.

Dawson-McGill Soccer Match Ends in 1-1 Tie

Kicking in the mud, sometimes getting the ball, sometimes just the mud, McGill and Dawson soccer teams scored evenly in the game played at Molson's Stadium on Saturday. Proof that both teams had the ball at their toes at one time or other, are the two goals, one by Craig of Dawson, and the other by Barnard of McGill.

Beside the two scorers, Wood, Wolvin and Wolcott starred for McGill, and Lecoq and Feinstat for Dawson.

This is the third time that these two teams have met each other this season. The first game was a tie of 1 to 1, while the second was won by Dawson by a score of 2 to 1.

EXCELLENT DISPLAY

The matches between these two squads have always been fast and furious, because both have excellent men and both play hard to win. At the moment Dawson is in the lead but on form the local Redmen showed in Saturday's encounter that the big Red eleven will be heard of much more prominently in the future. The McGill soccerites are gunning for their second victory and their next meeting might be the game that will put the local hopefuls into the win column again.

Floor Hockey League To Be Decided Upon

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! All you rugged individuals around the campus are finally going to get your chance to show your worth. Tonight at 7.00 p.m., there is to be the first meeting of all floor hockey enthusiasts at the Sir Arthur Currie Gym. Everyone is urged to attend and it has been announced that if enough interest is shown, an interfaculty league will be formed with Jean Lesperance as manager. It is hoped that many of the former Dawsonites, who inaugurated this popular pastime last year at St. Johns, will be out to form the backbone of this year's competition.

5 Queen's Students Elected To Camsi Exec.

Affiliation with CMA; Support Drive for Financial Assistance

Duff Demonstrates

Request Internes As Members

Five Queen's University Medical Students were elected to the National Executive of the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes, yesterday at the close of the Tenth National Conference of CAMSI. Sylvia J. Onesti was appointed Editor-in-Chief of the CAMSI Journal, and will be the sixth member of the Executive for 1946-47.

BILL WEDLOCK NTL. PRES.
Affiliation with the Canadian Medical Association and support of financial assistance for post-graduate medical training were passed by the National Committee of delegates from nine Canadian medical schools. High point of the conference was the election of Bill Wedlock, fourth year medical student at Queen's, as National President of the CAMSI, to succeed the retiring president, Robert W. Black, of McGill University.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANT
CAMSI will send two full representatives to the General Council of the Canadian Medical Association, according to the offer made by the C.M.A. at Banff last June. In return, CAMSI has amended its constitution to include a voting representative of the CAMSI on its own National Committee, and has directed its new National Executive to form a combined committee with the C.M.A. and the Canadian Hospital Council in the investigation of financial assistance for post-graduate medical training.

The National Executive has also been directed to seek Dominion and/or Provincial grants, scholarships, and loans for postgraduate medical training, as well as to help delegate C. S. Wright of Dalhousie University faculty of medicine to secure grants for exchange scholarships, bursaries for needy students, etc.

INTERNES NOT AFFILIATED
To the newly-formed Montreal Internes Council, the CAMSI National Committee of delegates has offered membership but not affiliation. The Council had requested affiliation, but the delegates felt that the 200-300 internes represented by the Council should become members of CAMSI, and that the chairman of the Council should thereby become a member of the National Committee.

CAMSI went on record as supporting financial assistance for post-graduate medical training, "on which the burden of a long and expensive course inevitably falls," but stated in a resolution that it was opposed to any attempt to force hospital boards to pay their interne staffs. Several plans were proposed to the National Com-
